

I drive 50 miles round trip to work. The local radio stations in Houston do not have up to date traffic & weather. Just the other day I was heading out to work, switched it to traffic and found out all 4 lanes on Highway 249 were closed due to an accident. I was able to change my direction and make it to work on time. Did the local channels mention it? No!
What's the difference between people having satellite television? And if I am willing to pay for satellite radio - let me! At times I listen to local channels but I simply prefer XM Satellite.

Also - living in Houston - at the drop of a dime it floods! The weather and traffic channel has save my car several times this month (May, 2004) with telling me which streets are flooded.

I think it is wrong for the NAB to lobby against satellite radio. They need to keep their nose out of my business!
